THE LAST MILE

June 2019 summary report, they wrote:

“We recommend that by 2030, every adult should have affordable access to digital networks, as well as digitally-enabled financial and health services, as a means to make a substantial contribution to achieving the SDGs.”

THE LAST MILE

Similarly, a report released by the New European Union-African Union Digital Economy Task Force in June 2019 identified its first goal as follows:

“1. Accelerate universal access to affordable broadband”; and a 2018 report by the Pathways for Prosperity Commission on extending universal access focused on meaningful connectivity

Source: Pathways for Prosperity Commission, Digital Lives. Meaningful Connections for the Next 3 Billion (2018).

THE LAST MILE

There are four overarching reasons why billions of people remain offline:

1. Lack of Network Infrastructure availability

3. Lack of perceived relevance

2. Lack of affordable internet service

4. Gaps in skills and ability

THE LAST MILE

Similarly, a report released by the New European Union-African Union Digital Economy Task Force in June 2019 identified its first goal as follows:

IT IS ESTIMATED THAT .....

- Up to 750 million people worldwide live in areas where there is a “coverage gap”, i.e. no signal from any mobile broadband network (at least 3G)
- A further 3.28 billion people are in the “usage gap”, i.e. they live in an area covered by a mobile broadband network but are not using the mobile Internet, for reasons related to affordability (of service and devices), relevance, and user skills.

According to GSMA (the association of network operators)

ADDRESSING THE LAST MILE

Gaps in skills and ability

Around 15 per cent of the world's population, or an estimated one billion people are persons with disabilities.<sup>1</sup>

According to the 2018 Disability & Development Report<sup>2</sup> from the UN, “persons with disabilities are at a disadvantage regarding most Sustainable Development Goals”, and “concrete action is needed to include the world’s one billion persons with disabilities, as both agents and beneficiaries of development”.

Barriers to inclusion and participation are exacerbated by the lack of access to affordable, relevant assistive technology. Only one in 10 people have access to the assistive technology they need to live independent and autonomous lives.

Digital accessibility is recognised as a key priority in several global commitments, including the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD), the Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) and the UN Disability Inclusion Strategy, with the core aim to ensure “no one is left behind” in our increasingly digital world.

Recommendations from GSMA on digital inclusion:

- Conduct consumer insights research to better understand the requirements, circumstances and views of persons with disabilities and the barriers limiting their access to and use of the mobile-enabled products and services
- Explore the attitudinal and social barriers, such as stigma and discrimination, faced by persons with disabilities in addition to the physical or technological barriers
- Consult, involve and listen to persons with disabilities in the development and iteration of products and services, in line with the mantra “nothing about us without us”
- Consult with those who understand the experiences, requirements and barriers of persons with disabilities in the market (e.g. Disabled Peoples’ Organisations (DPOs), relevant customer facing employees)
