DC on Schools of Internet Governance
Annual report 2020

 The DC Schools of Internet Governance (DC SIG) focuses on trying to produce materials that are useful to those who are considering or running a SIG. As there are as many ways to do this as there are schools, we are collecting examples and extracting those things that are useful in a number of possible school organizations. During this year, we released a revision of the Toolkit document and began work on an operations guide.

Specifically:

- The Toolkit document: This document has been in development for 2 years and is a substantive piece of work. This year saw the production of Rev1. As this is a living doc, it is one in which we always find more to be done and future revisions remain part of the work plan.
- The Operations Guide: This is a new doc developed during 2020 that is still early in development. At this point it is mostly an annotated outline which will be a main focus to continuing work.
- The web site: One of the major projects on the web site this year has been the inclusion of as many of the existing schools in the map of schools. The web site also supports a wiki that allows any interested school to contribute information on their schools, including plans and curricula..

One point made about all of the work items is that the group projects are all open for improvement and further work. The document work is done on drive documents that allow for anyone with the url to review, comment and recommend new text. At our periodic online meetings through the year, all recommended changes are reviewed by attendees at the meeting and either approved or left for further discussion.
