Internet Governance Forum 2016:

A summary of the Gender Report Cards
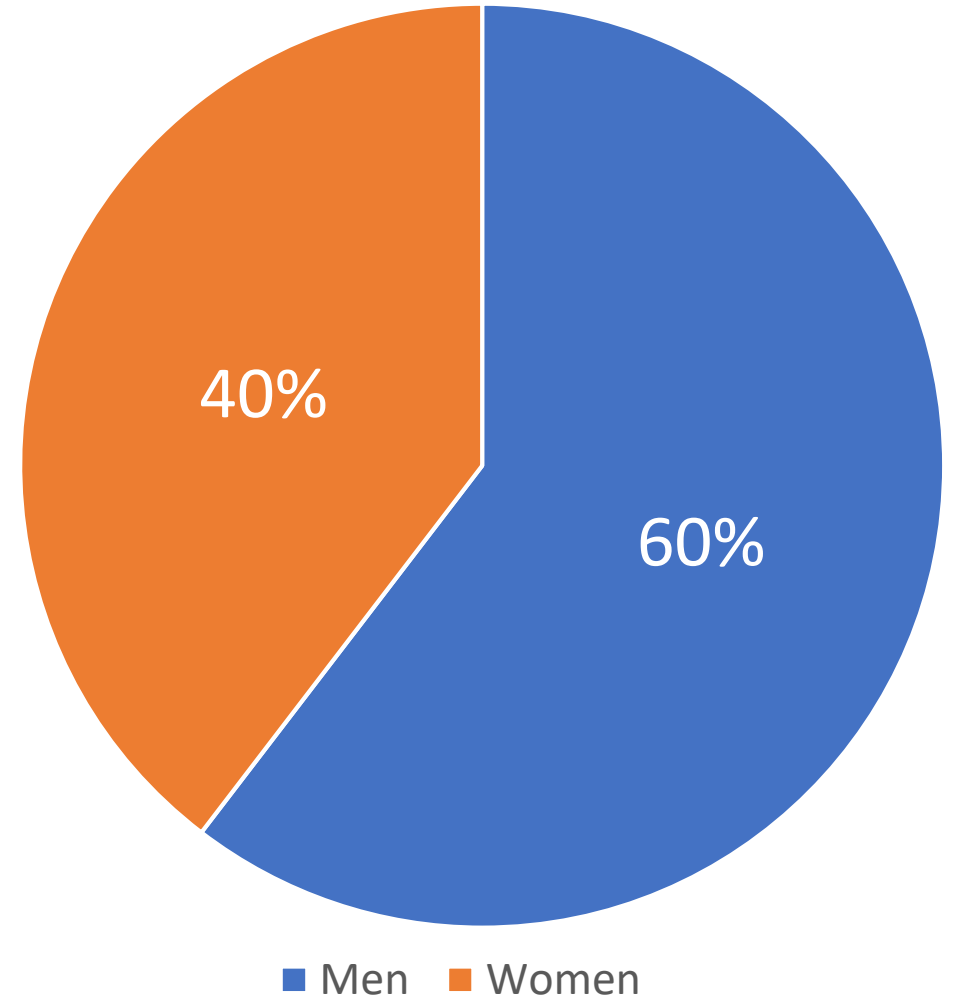

- Gender report cards were completed for 97 workshops out of 205.

IGF workshop reports

53% Non-reporting workshops

47% Reporting workshops

Gender of onsite and online participants

- Almost 40% of the onsite and online participants were women
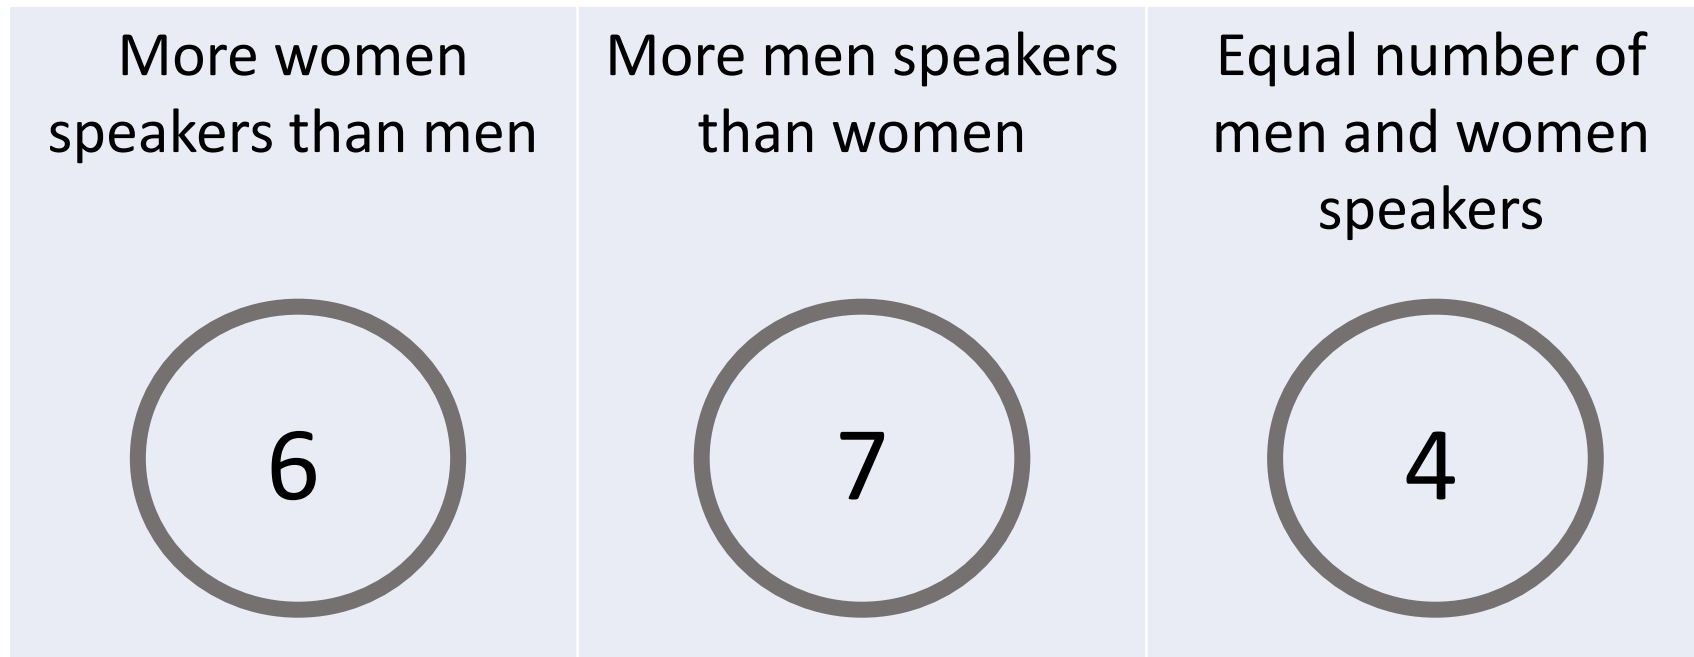

40%
60%

■ Men ■ Women

Gender Diversity of Participants

- Number of female participants recorded for 93 sessions/workshops.

Number of sessions

Percentage of women participants

■ < 25 %   ■ 25-49%   ■ 50%   ■ 50-75%   ■ > 75%

Workshops with majority female participation:

- Dynamic coalition on gender and internet governance

- Is personal data mine or there to be mined?

- Sex and freedom of expression online

- Doxing women: privacy protections against gender violence

- Solutions for countering online abuse against women

Number of workshop panels with:

More women speakers than men	More men speakers than women	Equal number of men and women speakers
6	7	4

Data recorded for 29 workshops, out of which data from 12 reports was inconclusive.

Sessions with all-women panels:

- Sex and freedom of expression online
- Dynamic coalition on gender and internet governance
- Doxing women: privacy protections against gender violence

Gender diversity of moderators

- Recorded for only 8 workshops.

- Sex and Freedom of Expression Online workshop had all-women moderators.

Relevance of gender as a theme

Direct engagement	No engagement	Partial focus
24	4	27

Data recorded for 55 workshops

Comparison of gender diversity at IGF

Women as	IGF 2015	IGF 2016
Panelists	37%	Inconclusive
Moderators	35%	Inconclusive
Participants	38%	40%

Comparison of reporting at IGF

Categories	No. of workshop reports from IGF 2015	No. of workshop reports from IGF 2016
Panelists	105	29
Moderators	105	8
Participants	87	93

Why is reporting so low in 2016?