| How has the work of the DC during the COVID-19 pandemic helped contribute to the socio-economic renewal of the economy ¹ | This response is provided in our separate one pager with title “COVID-19 and the Dynamic Coalition on Core Internet Values” |
| Has the work of the DC during the COVID-19 pandemic identified any activities related to its work that could contribute to the socio-economic renewal of the economy after the pandemic ends | This response is provided in our separate one pager with title “COVID-19 and the Dynamic Coalition on Core Internet Values” |
| How can this DC, in collaboration with other DCs, engage the wider IGF community to develop innovative ways to achieve global, inclusive socio-economic renewal, and get the SDGs back on track? | The DC Core Internet Values has already taken steps to cooperate with the DC Internet of Things and the Internet Rights & Principles Coalition. It is also interested in cooperating with the newly created Dynamic Coalition on Internet Standards, Security and Safety, as it is a widely held view in the DC CIV that our activities are complementary and should be able to support each other. Threats to the Internet Model have not slowed down during the Pandemic. Whilst the Internet has succeeded in support a Pandemic-affected world very successfully indeed, political attempts to change the Internet to a more top down controlled network are ongoing and the DC is more than ever determined to collaborate with other DCs to keep the Internet as successful, innovative, resilient and useful as it is today. |

¹ For example: identifying ways to ensure access and safety for groups at risk; addressing issues of connectivity, sustainability and freedom of speech under the crisis
